Dedicated: To The Unknown Student

Who is that student who has worked on committees, written for the paper, advised a friend, and tried in class and out to make North Central the kind of school it can be and should be? He's the unknown student. He's you or I, and I see him every day, mirrored in the faces around me and in the goals I set. To him, this book is dedicated.

Walking down the street, I see myself —

in the store windows

in the trees
that line my way

Sometimes I see myself

in my friends —
in what they say

and what I see in their eyes

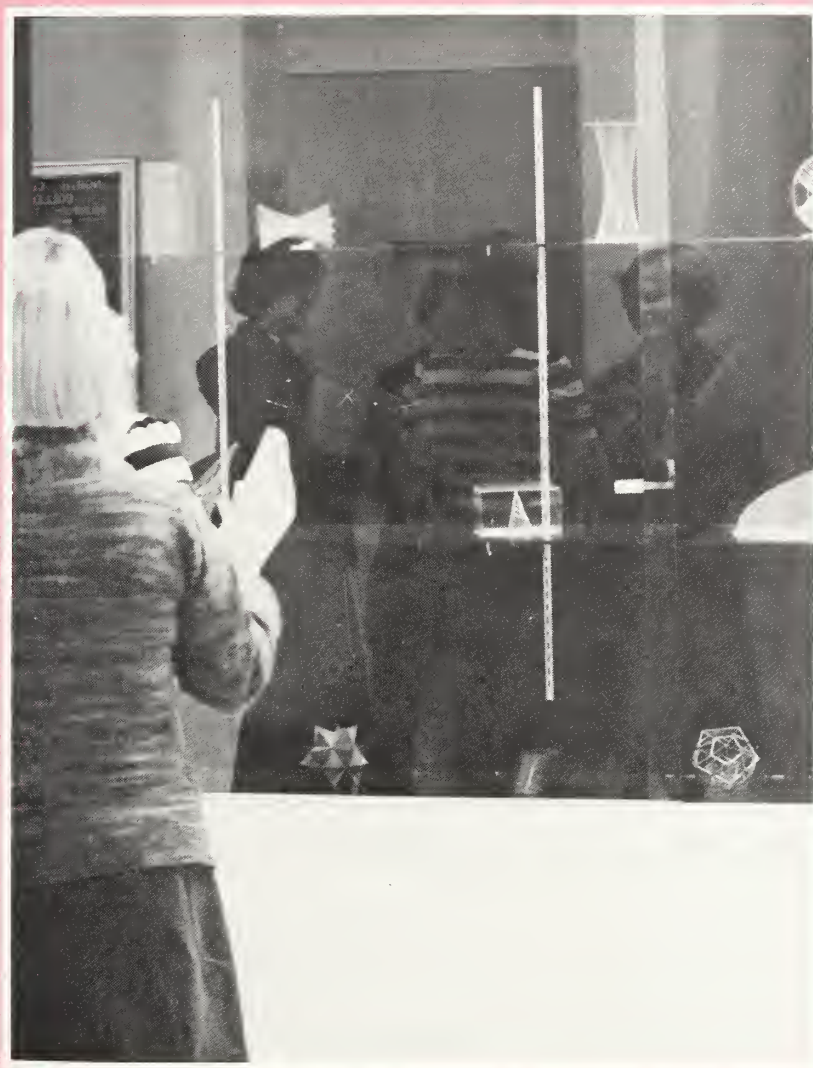

Sometimes
I see myself
in the things around me

In all
these ways,
I see myself
mirrored

just as you see yourself mirrored

But there's another mirror

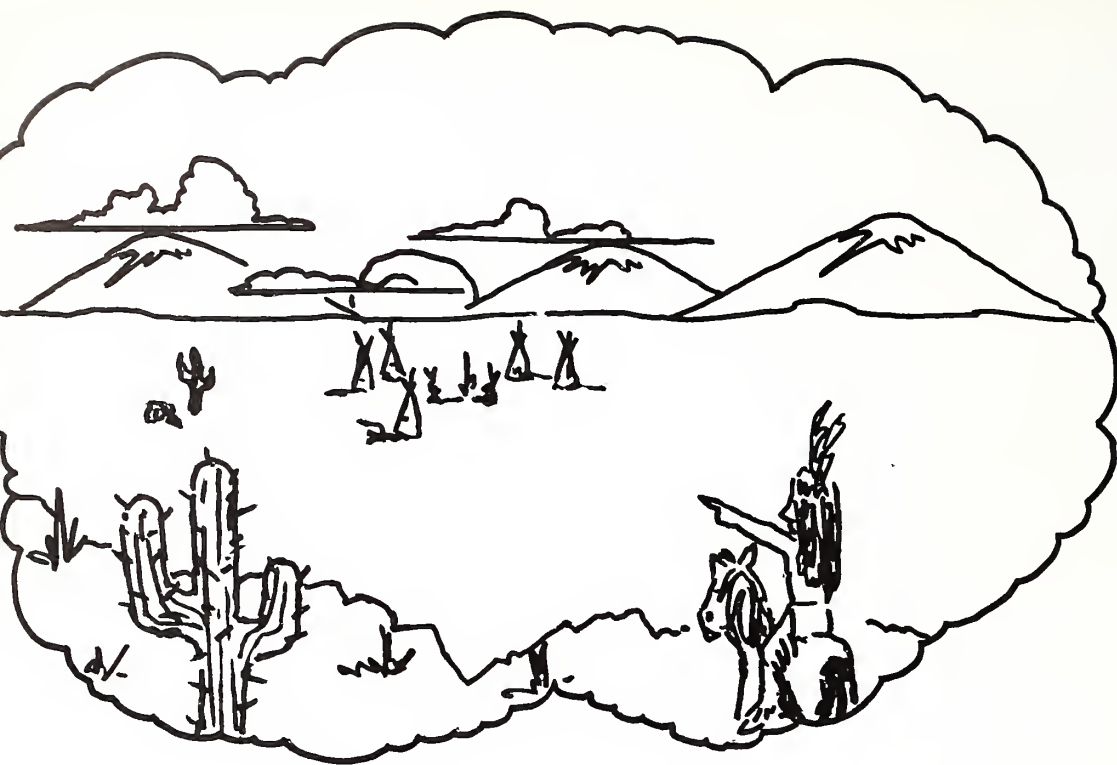

In the desert
Life is dry.
Unattended,
The tree strives to survive
But dreams
of water
of life companioned
of the grandeur of the skies
And dies
alone.

A mirror in my mind

What is a true friend? To Bassanio, it was Antonio who gave him the money he needed to win the fair Portia. To Antonio, it was Portia who saved him from the payment of his bond: a pound of flesh closest to his heart. To Shylock, it was his money and his daughter. Well, Antonio got his money and Lorenzo got his daughter, which just goes to prove, villains were created to be "foiled again."

The Merchant Of Venice

The theme of this years Homecoming was the Wild, Wild West. The week started with convocation on Monday night. S squirt guns and cowboy hats were sold to help promote that wild west feeling. Casino night in that old saloon — the Cage was followed by a good old country square dance. Spirit was incensed at the pep rally by the bonfire on Friday night. Saturday morning kicked off with the parade highlighted with floats, the pep band, pom pom girls, and graced by Homecoming court and queen, Denny Shupryt. After the stunning victory at the game celebrated by the Cardinal's victory party, we will all hold fond memories of Homecoming 1977.

Fall

Fall, the beginning of the school year — remember the lines at the bookstore (it took forever, didn't it)? There was also the first blood drive. Many good times were shared by all . . . Homecoming, Dad's Day, The Merchant of Venice, football games, dances and the Halloween Dance. Just look back and you'll remember all the special happenings that made Fall.

Winter Carnival

Winter Carnival offers a change of pace for NCC students. For the winter of '78, some of the highlights were the song show (won by Nick Smolen), a student-faculty basketball game, (we won't mention who won that), a baby face contest, and a turnabout dance. Blizzard and all, it proved an interesting week and an overwhelming winter.

Call Me Madam

There is only one observation to make about a country that celebrates its birthday with fireworks and sends a woman as ambassador to Lichtenburg. "These Americans — how they love to play with explosives!" Sally Adams (Kim Novicki) is explosive, in song and dance and every other diplomatic effort, including falling in love with Cosmo Constantine (Chris Schultz), minister of foreign affairs (well, he might as well have his own). Every tradition that wasn't battered beyond recognition by Madam Ambassador was broken by the unorthodox love affair between the Princess (Marguerite Smith) and a reporter (Wayne Morgan). But it all turned out well in the end: Lichtenburg kept making babies and cheese, both couples were eternally united, and Max got back the ceremonial sword.

Charlie's Aunt

The production of Charlie's Aunt left us all laughing. The play was presented May 6, 7, and 8. The story begins with the pursuit by two ardent, Victorian young men (Brian Fiecho and Paul Havelka) of two coquettish, Victorian ladies (Rhonda Piazza and Margaret Clark). Yet it all centers around Charlie's unlikely aunt played by Danny Palmer, who proved beyond any doubt — "What devils we women are!"

Spring Thing

Mom's Day

Convo Adds To Education

Convocation has been a good learning experience for all of us. Some highlights of convocation were: Dr. Dario Politella, on ethics, Dr. Martin Marty, Dr. Edward E. Lawler, Dr. Frank E. Young, Senator Daniel P. Moynihan, Dr. Lawrence Kohlberg, and the final Honors Convocation.

Spring!

Spring . . . sunbathing, softball and frisbee . . . NCC is alive! So much happened during spring term. We had Moms out. There were coffee-houses; students danced a whole day at the marathon, and we generally had a good time. Graduation meant parting with Seniors, we'll miss them, but we wish them luck!

French And Spanish Clubs

Language clubs on campus encourage one of the greatest values in the study of foreign language — the appreciation and absorption of the culture of foreign countries.

Top to Bottom: G. Veasy, C. Dorsey, J. Edwards, J. Harrington, M. Hollick, D. Lang, L. Hodney, M. Araya, L. Correa

Theatre Guild

They face the audience obscured by make up or run the lights instead of performing before them. This is Theatre Guild. A few of the many who worked on plays in 1977-78 are pictured here. It takes an awful lot of manpower to put a show on stage. Recognition is due all around.

Phil, Paul, and Jeff exhibit what is known in theatre talk as being "hams."

WONC has prospered this year with the influx of new blood in the form of Dr. Jonathon Yoder. There's always plenty to do at a radio station and among those doing this year were Doug Van Dell, station manager; Dan Fields, news director; Bruce Nessmith, public affairs; Peggy Hoppenrath, traffic; and Scott Haebich, programming. Experience teaches like nothing else can and that's one thing (even if the only thing) the WONC staff has learned in the past year.

Several Alumni such as Steve Jacula return again to the ZD stage.

Who is that choir boy?

Once again this year the Zeta Delta Fraternity played to a fullhouse in its two concerts. No one could help but applaud the feminine additions to the fraternity. Notable contributions were also made by alumni and the male recruits as well.

Paul and Wayne cavort as few others dare.

Mary Wilson strums and sings to original tunes.

Paul Carr - CUAB President

This year's College Union Activities Board came closer to accurately reflecting the programming needs and desires of North Central's varied student body. CUAB met the challenge of non-resident programming by instituting a commuter committee to advise the rest of the board on appropriate activities and to initiate innovative commuter centered activities. Cultural programs necessary to the campus life of any liberal arts school were represented by CUAB's support of the Community Concert Series. Many students became avid theatre patrons due to the excellent quality of the three dinner/theatre trips. Of course, recreational activities were not slighted as such programs as ski-trips, camp-outs and Game Days were made available. The Visual Arts Committee brought a great variety of choice, contemporary films to campus that made movie going fun as well as inexpensive. Social activities were boosted by organizing a week of concentrated activities each term. Homecoming, Winter Carnival and Spring Thing Weeks were the result. It was a good year for student activities and the joy of the student organizers was mirrored in the faces of all those that participated.

The Chronicle/Spectrum float was the first prize winners in the CUAB homecoming parade.

L.I.F.E.

LIFE has become an integral part of campus life since its beginning. This year found it involved with square dances and pie eating contests and old games and new games. Spring Thing was the occasion for the gaming. A grand time was had by all as NCC students wrestled, threw, careened, and slid away a sunny afternoon. Now that's life!

The Staff went through a lot of changes this past year, but the paper always made it to the presses. Despite any rumors, the book has made it as well. You have the proof in your hands. Cindy Sikorski (left) was Editor-in-Chief Fall and Winter. Brian Fiecho (opposite page) took over in the Spring.

The NCC Administration

Someone has to plan and plot things out and the name given to those are the "administrators." Old Main is the center of administration on North Central's campus, and yet it reaches out to affect the life of every member of the campus community. Farewells need to be here extended to Mr. Joe McKane and a welcome to Mr. Lee Wade, as well as apologies to Hank and Ron Guenther who are not pictured here.

Making Dorm Life

The ingredients that make up dorm life are not only the students in the dorms themselves, but also those who do their work among the students. Special efforts on the part of Mike Moser, campus minister, made him seem a fitting part of dorm life along with the dorm directors and Bill Pohl in the cafeteria.

Faculty — The Source And The Contributor

The composition of the faculty makes or breaks the true value of a college education. We have pictured professors here who will have to be representative. Our apologies to those who are not pictured. There was no intent involved, merely oversight and poor organization. Permit us to acknowledge each faculty member by name at least, and thank each one individually for his contribution to 1977 - 78.

Fragment

I would to heaven that I were so much clay,
As I am blood, bone, marrow, passion, feeling —
Because at least the past were passed away —
And for the future — (but I write this reeling,
Having got drunk exceedingly today,
So that I seem to stand upon the ceiling)
I say — the future is a serious matter —
And so — for God's sake — wine and soda-water!

NCC displays good defense with one on one.

The basketball season may not have looked amazing on paper, but some pretty amazing feats of basketball finesse were shown on the courts along with quite a bit of promise. The teamwork was the most gratifying to watch. Good teams are not made up of "hot dogs." The freshmen additions should receive due credit for the talent they brought to NCC, but let us not forget the veterans: G. Obermeyer, J. Fulton, P. Hoban, J. Rainis, K. Decker, and J. Louis.

Coming toward the end of the race, Pat Kerrigan leads a long line of runners.

The 1977 North Central Cross Country team, defended NCAA Division III champions, was perhaps even stronger than last year's squad. This fact was evidenced at the Notre Dame Invitational. There, the Cards posted a composite school record for 5-miles. Top returning runners included: Steve Jawor, Rich Scott, Dave Bashaw (All-American), Bruce Fischer (All-American), Bob Patrick, Jeff Klemann, and Jim Nichols.

This year's team was strengthened immensely by the addition of several top freshmen. Jeff Milliman, Dan Skarda, and Pete Ffitch had all shown varsity potential. With this type of depth, the biggest problem was determining who should represent the school each week. We had so many great runners that, had many of them chosen schools with less cross country tradition, they no doubt would have played starring roles. However, we believe that at NCC, each man, due to the intensity of competition, would come closer to reaching his potential.

The '77 season brought many new and needed members as well as renewed interest in the Women's Tennis team. Individually, the team faired pretty well. Patty Potas was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the state AIAW meet singles competition in Quincy. But, unfortunately, the women could only lob together two victories against the teams from Aurora College and Elmhurst College during regular season play.

Despite lack of outdoor courts, NCC hosted thirteen schools in the Cleo Tanner Invitational. On a whole, the Cards finished 13th at the tournament.

Despite the concerns of inexperience and of lack of confidence at the beginning of the season, teamplay improved as time progressed and the Volleyball team had strong potential. Each of the women possessed a specialty either in hitting, blocking, setting, or court play; all which helped to mold together a well-balanced group.

Dannie Shupryt "kills" the ball.

Injuries of Joyce Jablonski, Sally Sphatt, and Dannie Shupryt plagued the team at different times during the season. Shupryt's assets of blocking and power hitting were especially missed, but Coach Karen Hill expressed praise for the team's response to that challenge.

"Exciting" could be the word to describe the season overall. Good recruiting last year brought talented women to the team. Karen Hill became the head coach with new strategy and new ideas for the team. And to conclude the season, NCC held the national AIAW championships on Dec. 7-10.

In comparison with the past two seasons, the 1978 Women's Basketball team improved greatly this season, coming up with a 7-9 overall record. Combining the past two seasons, the women then only won six games. This year, prospects looked brighter with an increase in the team's size, better recruiting, and more experience. The excitement began with the first game against Eureka College and Sally Sphatt's last second, game winning lay-up. Dawn Fendt's consistent scoring and the team's overall balance in the positions played and skill level aided in the tremendous efforts displayed. Despite losses at the end of the season, the team developed well.

Coach Hill thanks the opposing team for a good game.

Once again, North Central's Track team had an outstanding spring season. Capturing its fourth straight CCIW championship with 204½ points at the meet held here at NCC and placing four team members in the tough Illini Classic meet were highlights to the endless team and individual successes. Many individual bests were achieved: John Linder received a time of 54.0 for the 400 intermediate hurdles, Bruce Fischer a 9:07.6 in the steeplechase, Don Milkent with a 48.5 in the 400 meter, Glenn Behnke with a time of 29:42.2 in the 10,000 meter, and Tim Ehlebracht with a throw of 383 feet in the javelin. In the 1500 meter, Tom Whittaker (4:44), Art Kurz (4:07). Mark Richmond (4:05), Keith Hoth (4:04), Bert Becker (4:03.4), Pete Amann (4:03.3), and Keith Martin (4:00) got their personal bests.

Although the Cards only had one teammate, sophomore guard Bernard Verner, named to the CCIW squad, three seemed to be the Cards' lucky number. 1977 marked the third straight winning and rushing season for the Cards and also their best season since 1966. Furthermore, the Cards finished third in CCIW with a conference record of 5-3, 6-3 for the season.

1977 also heralded the return of the Little Brass Bell when the Cards defeated Wheaton, its owner since 1966. Over-all, the Cards had a very successful season; hopefully, next year, the Cards' lucky number will be "1".

Coach Marv Mainz voices his opinion.

The baseball team of 1977-78 easily outplayed teams at NCC for a good many years back. They're late season record of 11-12 compares very favorably with the 9-36 overall record of last year. The culmination of talent and effort guided under the hand of Coach Mainz brought it off. As all too often happens, NCC is saying good-bye to a lot of talent when it bids another professor farewell.

Once again, the swimming team, through action and word, spoke well for North Central. Many of those who went to Nationals, held this year in Grinnell, Iowa, are pictured on the opposing page. Coach Ryan (lower right) can well be proud of the 1977-78 swimming and diving Cardinals.

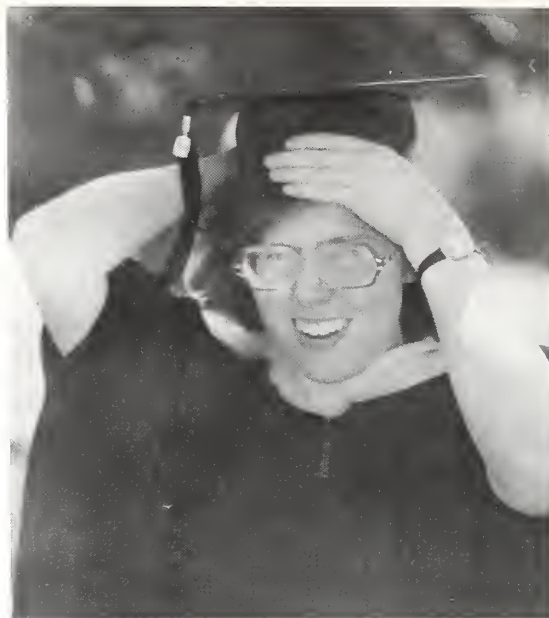

It all began with the procession. Or did it? Maybe it all began with putting the robe on. But no — it goes back further than that. In order to commence to something, you have to commence from something.

Reflecting On These Years . . .

This is it — what it's for in a way. But doesn't it have to stand for something more if it's to be worth it? That's a question that can only be answered in a framework of years.

And They Helped To

After spending a whole book reflecting, why stop now? Permit me to reflect upon the people that made this book. First, thanks to Nancy for lending herself to activities like no one has done before. And a very special thanks to Georgia and Ann for chasing down those ball teams. Appreciation goes to Sue who repeatedly came through in the pinch. Thank you, Sandy for more than I can mention here. Thanks to Debbie and Margaret for using every shred of humor they had to get through it. To the photographers — gratitude commensurate with your efforts on behalf of the book. To Jeff — we made that deadline! To Bruce — alphabetize next time! And to Linda who knew all the names.
